Wisconsin FORCE is the Shield in Wisconsin that protects your Second Amendment rights.

The Shield protects you from attacks and keeps you safe as we move forward in the fight to restore lost rights.

We have strengthened that Shield by creating the Wisconsin FORCE Political Victory Fund.

This fund is critical, especially with the upcoming elections, including the future of our rights in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin FORCE has been working with its partners in early candidate support, and this fund will strengthen that support.

Our goal is to raise $5000 by April 1. Any donation, as little as $10 or as much as $5000, would help in reaching our goal.

Donate today by sending a check made payable to Wisconsin FORCE PVF or use your charge card by opening the

"Donate" tab on the website, putting Wisconsin FORCE PVF in the comments box. By law you must include your full name, address, and occupation. Mail checks to: WF PVF, PO Box 130, Seymour, WI 54165-0130

From the Executive Director

I have carried a knife daily since the age of 8 when the family pen knife was given to me. It didn't matter where I went, school, church or baseball field, I carried a knife. We played a form of mumbly peg on the school grounds during recess. As I have expressed many times, it is the use of the item, not the item used, that is the issue. I have trained with knives for over 30 years and taught defense knife for over 20. Life is full of the use of edged tools and now we can choose what we carry based on our personal preference, not irrational fear. The knives I carry vary from $5 cheapies to a $500 custom made. A great compromise are the new Hogue knives. Most of us are familiar with Hogue. They are well known for the gun grips. I have Hogue grip sleeves on several of my Glocks and have since the early 90s.

During our work on the knife bill I found out they are now making knives. They are a true Second Amendment supporter and support the efforts of KnifeRights, the national organization that we brought in after the bill was introduced. They donated presentation Extreme Series knives, designed by Allen Elishewitz, for the signing. You can win one of the presentation knives by entering our range services raffle. The knives look good and feel light and easy in the hand. Their action is smooth, and they are made in America. They are in the middle of pricing range for quality knives. If you are looking for a little of both worlds, look into Hogue. After hearing of our efforts over the last eight years, they have made a nice donation to Wisconsin FORCE. My daily carry knife is now a Hogue. When you see me feel free to ask about it.

This month's picture is me firing on the 300 yard line at LaCrosse last year. As I have mentioned before, I am very excited that we are finally going to be able to use a true modern military rifle in service competition. This year should be a great year on the range. Our mid and long range clubs in Wisconsin are special, make sure you try to experience them. If you are already a competitor, I hope to see you there and please bring a new shooter. . On the Range - Jeff Nass

The 2016 shooting season is just around the corner. Please help your club prepare for this year. Everyone can help their club. If you look and cannot find anything to do, you are not looking hard enough. Talk to the leaders at your club for an overview of what is in the works. Just like those who look for a problem will always find one, if you look for a project, you can always find one. Make sure you are reasonable when scheduling your project not to interfere with club activities.

Wisconsin FORCE recently filed our class A raffle report and renewal. It was extremely easy on-line thanks to Wisconsin FORCE, Scott Taetsch, and the NRA cleaning up the state's gaming laws. With the new system reporting is very easy and fast, as it should be. Naturally, for tax purposes and in case of an audit, you must maintain records of expenses, and income. Make sure your license(s) are properly filed and renewed each year.

What the heck are these?

New Wisconsin FORCE Board member Brian Rautanen got us onboard with QR codes (abbreviated from Quick Response Code) which we are utilizing to allow quick and easy access Wisconsin FORCE. All of us are familiar to "bar codes," QR codes are a hi-bred. By installing a free app such as TWMobile from the Google Play on your smart phone, you can easily read, open, send or save information.

We are the top resource in the state for range upgrades, improvements, and expansions. Our advice is used by the DNR, clubs, law enforcement, and businesses. Start early on your plans for next year and include Wisconsin FORCE from the start of that process. Your time is valuable; we can help you from wasting time and resources. We can also guide you on state laws and connect you directly with the great minds at NRA legal when needed.

Novice hunters! Apply today to Learn to Hunt Bear this Summer

Contact: Keith Warnke, DNR Hunting and Shooting Sports Coordinator, 608-576-5243.

MADISON - People who want to experience a real Wisconsin black bear hunt with skilled mentors have until May 27 to apply to participate in a Learn to Hunt Bear program featuring classroom and field instruction and capped with a genuine hunt. Keith Warnke, Department of Natural Resources hunting and shooting sports coordinator, says the Learn to Hunt Bear program represents an opportunity of a lifetime for novice hunters of any age. "Working in partnership with many dedicated bear hunters and local conservation organizations, wardens and wildlife managers, successful Learn to Hunt Bear events have been held across northern Wisconsin during the last several years," Warnke said. "The long-term success rate of harvesting a bear through the LTH program is around 50 percent." Participation in the DNR Learn to Hunt Bear program is limited. Applications will be evaluated and the winners will be notified in mid-June. Documents and applications for the Learn to Hunt Bear program can be found by searching the DNR website for "LTH."

The program is intended for people who would not have any opportunity to experience bear hunting without it. Who can apply?

- Anyone who is age 10 and older who has not participated in a Learn to Hunt Bear event.

- Anyone who has not previously purchased a Class A or Class B bear license, or applied for preference points.

However, Warnke says, applicants with a connection to bear hunting through family and friends will be given lower priority in the selection process. Applications can be found on the DNR website, dnr.wi.gov, by searching for "learn to hunt bear" and must be postmarked by May 27. In 2005, the DNR began the Learn to Hunt Bear program as another outreach program for novice hunters. Other opportunities featured in the Learn to Hunt program include turkey, deer, pheasant, upland game and waterfowl. For more information search the DNR website for "LTH."

Help shape deer management in your county -- attend a County Deer Advisory Council meeting!

If you have an opinion on antlerless harvest quotas, permit levels and season structure in your county, you are encouraged to attend your local County Deer Advisory Council meeting to provide input. CDACs will meet between March 14 - 24 in all Wisconsin counties to develop recommendations for the 2016 deer hunting seasons. The Ins and Outs of Handgun Safes - OutdoorHub - Richard Mann - 12-26-13

Whether for added security at home, on the road or in your luggage, a small handgun safe is a wise investment...if you know what to look for.

At the family farm, Grandpa always had his pistol close by. That Smith & Wesson Model 10 hung on a nail in the cabin protruding from a floor joist over grandma and grandpa's bed. Any of us kids could have stood on the bed and reached the pistol, but we didn't. We knew better, and nothing was worth the whoopin' we'd get if grandpa found out.

There was another reason we didn't bother grandpa's pistol. Anytime we'd ask—if he wasn't busy—grandpa would let us handle or even shoot his revolver. This took the mystery out of the equation, and I carry on that tradition with my children. But, I don't leave pistols hanging around the house on nails. If it's not on my person, it's generally in a safe. This is not a matter of trust; it's common sense. more on page 5

The affordability of compact handgun safes has negated the old ways of storing a gun. There is no longer a good reason to hide a pistol in a closet, dresser drawer or under the mattress. Some handgun safes cost less than $30 and are infinitely more secure than drawers or a nail and the threat of a whoopin'. Some are small enough, they not only provide security, but are also very concealable and portable. Access to these safes can be with a key, a secret code and even your fingerprint.

Interested in knowing more about them, I asked every manufacturer I could find to send samples for testing. Four agreed to participate: GunVault, Secure-It, Stack-On and V-Line. I've had the test safes for more than six months, and during that time I've used each model on a daily basis for several weeks to get a feel for them. When this process was complete, I gave my 11-year old son a hammer, a flat-tip screwdriver and 2 minutes to try to break into some of the safes.

After all, if you're considering a handgun safe, you should be curious about the level of security they provide, how easy they are to access, how versatile the safe is with regard to where it can be used and, of course, price. Let's address the question of security first. My son broke into the first safe he tried to open. It took him about 90 seconds to breach one of the very compact, key-lock safes. He tried the same approach on a biometric safe, but after 2 minutes was unsuccessful. Then, he got out the hammer. After that, he was four-for-four on gaining unauthorized access.

The lesson learned here should be all of these handgun safes are more of a barrier to a handgun as opposed to absolute security. That does not mean they are worthless or cannot be trusted under certain circumstances. However, it would be a mistake to assume a handgun in any of these safes cannot be stolen or improperly accessed by another human. That being said, I currently use versions of three of these safes in my home, one in my vehicle and my wife's and another when I travel by plane.

The smallest, book-style safes from Secure-It and Stack-On seem well suited to airline travel. I won't get into TSA regulations or the rules of various airlines, but let me say this: I fly from home on United, and when doing so I can lock up a handgun in one of these small, lightweight safes and drop it in my checked baggage. I've never had a problem at any airport when using this method. Most of these safes also come with a cable that allows you to secure it to something in a motel room or wherever you are staying. But, this type of safe was the easiest to breach.

There were two types of coded safes tested—models that have a series of mechanical or electrical buttons that must be pushed in a certain sequence to gain access. All of these safes provided flawless operation, if you entered the correct code. The electrical safes are battery powered and battery failure can be a concern. Some have an audible alarm indicating a low battery, but all the electric-lock safes can also be opened with a key.

Mechanical safes have the advantage of working without electricity. If you're storing a handgun for an extended period or only plan to access it in case of an emergency, the mechanical option has merit. Regardless, it is critical to remember your code with either the electric- or mechanical-lock safes. You do have the key backup with the electrical safes, but not for the mechanical models. Write your code down and remember where you put it.

Some of the safes come with mounting screws and hardware. This allows them to be attached to something, like under a table, desk or even to the floor. Break-in was not attempted with any of these safes while mounted—had they been, it may have made access more difficult. Mounting these safes would also make it exceedingly more difficult for a burglar to just carry your safe away. Unlike the cables that come with some of the smaller safes, which could be defeated with a pair of side-cutters, these mounted safes are a much better option for theft protection.

Finally, there are the biometric-lock safes. These models use technology that memorizes and reads your fingerprint. They are obviously electrically powered and do not require you to memorize a code. They must, however, be operated consistently. You have to place and pull your finger over the same spot every time, exactly the same way, or you will not be able to gain access. This takes practice, and after weeks of use, it still sometimes required several attempts for me to gain access to the biometric units. If you get frustrated, all the biometric safes do have a backup key lock.

Safe Advice

Based on what I've learned working with these 10 safes over the last several months, I believe they are all useful in certain circumstances. Here are 10 suggestions for general use:

- Mount safes intended to be stationary to the floor or heavy furniture.
- Memorize any codes, write them down and keep them with the key.
- If you use multiple safes, use models with the same locking mechanism and set all codes the same.
- Periodically check safes with electronic locks to verify battery power.
- Work with biometric-lock safes on a day-to-day basis to ensure competency opening them.
- Small, key-lock, book-style safes are best used for complying with regulations, not preventing access.
- Select a safe based on how it opens and where you want to place it.
- For long-term storage, consider mechanical- and key-lock safes, or at a minimum, long-life batteries.
- Select a safe at least large enough for your handgun, spare ammo and a flashlight.
- You get what you pay for—select the most expensive safe that meets your needs.

Zimbabwe Park to Cull 200 Lions, Cites Lack of Hunters OutdoorHub - Daniel Xu -2/23/16

A wildlife reserve in Zimbabwe says it may have to cull 200 lions in the absence of hunters. One of Zimbabwe's largest wildlife reserves, the Bulye Valley Conservancy, recently announced that it was considering culling up to 200 lions as the cats have become increasingly overpopulated. The wildlife reserve said its current population of around 500 lions is unsustainable due to the dramatic decline in hunters, possibly caused by the controversy over Cecil, a lion killed near Hwange National Park last year. Bulye officials say that without hunters to help manage the lion population, they are considering either hiring marksmen to shoot some of the animals, or capturing them and donating the cats to other reserves. Bulye has historically held one of the largest lion populations in Zimbabwe.

"I wish we could give about 200 of our lions away to ease the overpopulation," Blondie Leatham, the conservancy's general manager, told the National Post. "If anyone knows of a suitable habitat for them where they will not land up in human conflict, or in wildlife areas where they will not be beaten up because of existing prides, please let us know and help us raise the money to move them."

Leatham explained that the lions are a big threat to the park's other denizens, which included antelope, giraffes, leopards, and a number of other native species. This problem is exacerbated by the fact that the conservancy is trying to recover from one of the driest summers on record.

This is a very compact safe made of 20-gauge steel that can be slid under a bed or in a nightstand. It comes with a cable to secure it to a fixed object, and it's small enough to fit inside a briefcase. Access is gained via a fingerprint scanner or with a key. The biometric fingerprint reader can store up to 30 fingerprints and has a tamper alarm to let you know if someone has attempted to gain entry. I was able to gain access on my first attempt 80 percent of the time. Time to open: 2 seconds. MSRP: $229.99

GunVault MiniVault Deluxe

This safe weighs 9 pounds, is made from 16-gauge steel and is opened with either a key or by consecutively pushing buttons on the finger pad on the top of the unit. It is battery-powered electric safe and also comes with a cable that will allow it to be secured to a fixed object. An AC-power connection is an option, and there is an internal light to help you find your gun in the dark. A taller, shelved version is also available. Time to open: 3 seconds. MSRP: $169.99

Secure-It Handgun Storage Safe

The Secure-It line of handgun safes is best described as very small, compact and portable. These steel, book-size safes are available with a key or combination lock. In truth, you get what you pay for when it comes to security—a bit of effort with a hammer or pry bar, and you're inside. That doesn't mean these safes aren't useful. I routinely use one (or one like it) when traveling by air. I can drop my Diamondback DB380 and a box of ammo into the padded interior, throw it in my checked luggage and be gone. Time to open: 3 seconds. (A roll-dial combination lock is optional. Time to open: varied.) MSRP: $30

Stack-On Portable Security Case with Key Lock

For all practical purposes, this safe offers the same level of security as the Secure-It safe at about the same price. It won't withstand an eager burglar or a determined kid, but it will meet most regulations concerning air and vehicular transport. Like the Secure-It safe, it comes with a cable to secure the safe to a fixed object. Time to open: 3 seconds. MSRP: $39.99

Stack-On Personal Safe with Motorized Electronic Lock

This safe weighs 18 pounds and comes with screws, allowing it to be attached to the floor. It has a push-button, electric-code entry mechanism with a key override. When the programmable code is entered, the door opens via a motor, exposing the two-level interior. There is plenty of room inside for storing a handgun, spare ammo, a flashlight and a few other valuables. Both the bottom and removable steel shelves are padded. Time to open: 3 seconds. MSRP: $119.99

Stack-On Quick Access Safe with Biometric Lock This biometric-lock safe can store up to 28 fingerprints. The lock was tested 30 times in a row and failed to open four times. All biometric locks tested had about the same failure rate, which was actually user error—if you don't slide your finger across the scanner just right, they will not open. A key is provided as a backup in case batteries run low, and large lag screws are provided for attaching the safe to the floor. Time to open: 4 seconds. MSRP: $199.99

Stack-On Drawer Safe with Motorized Electronic Lock

This is a programmable, motorized, electronic-lock safe that has a 12-button keypad. When a button is pushed, a beep sounds, but this feature can be turned off. It is a larger safe, measuring just more than 2 inches deep and 10 by 16 inches square. The Drawer Safe has predrilled holes and lag screws for mounting to the floor, though the lid opens upward, limiting potentially convenient storage locations. That said, there's enough room inside for a handgun, flashlight and at least 100 rounds of ammunition. Time to open: 4 seconds. MSRP: $110.99

Stack-On Portable Steel Case with Electronic Lock

This is another programmable, motorized, electronic-lock safe, but a very compact model. As small as it is, it is not lightweight, tipping the scales at 6.5 pounds. There are three soft-touch buttons on the lid of the safe that, when touched in a sequence of your choosing, activate the motor to release the lock on the lid. Like all the tested electronic-lock safes, there's a key backup. This could also serve as a good travel safe in a vehicle, but would add undue weight to airline baggage. Time to open: 3 seconds. MSRP: $89.99 continued on page 7..... 6

The US Secret Service Training Guide for Spotting Concealed Weapons

OutdoorHub - 3/1/16

How do you spot someone who is carrying a weapon?

The US Secret Service has to deal with threats to public officials lives everyday. In order to better identify these potential threats they developed. While many of the "characteristics" in this list could apply to anyone this is still a good reference for identifying a threat. If you conceal carry you might want to look these over to make sure you are not identifiable by any of these behaviors. Even if you do not conceal carry it's still good to be aware of these potential danger signs. Something on this list might even help you avoid a deadly confrontation.

CHARACTERISTICS OF THE ARMED INDIVIDUAL - Sgt/Tech Kevin Porter

OBSERVATION - When placing a subject under observation for the purpose of trying to determine whether or not that person is possibly armed, what is the first crucial trait that you as a Law Enforcement Officer should try to determine about that individual??

▯ DETERMINE THEIR STRONG SIDE – Look for possible indicators such as Rings, Wristwatches, Writing, Smoking, Lighting Cigarettes, Holding/Moving Objects, etc. to help determine a favored side. An individual who carries a gun on their person will periodically touch that gun both consciously and unconsciously. This is called a Security Feel.

LOOK FOR: Touching, Feeling, Adjustments, Stiffer Arm. 88% of the people in the U.S. are right handed. The majority of those right-handed people that carry handguns illegally carry them in the right front waist band, loose. WHY? They see it in the movies, It's the "cool" thing to do, That is where it is the most secure and accessible.

Body Movements - conscious & unconscious (reasons/adjustments for touching, security feels, physical property of gun, when, why, how). Cause for slippage of weapon and when, Stiffer arm on gun side, Holding, Bending, Macho feeling, Running (from crime, rain, traffic, bus, subways, cab, etc.), Leaning, Sitting, Reaching, Crouching, Turning from view for adjustment, Pulling pants up, down, Pulling clothing down, Shorter arm & leg swing on gun side, Protective turning of armed side, Arm over center of body, etc., Turn and hold in crowds, Looking down at gun, Arm or part of arm holding snug, Security hold with elbow on gun, Getting in/out of vehicles. While walking or running (especially in the rain), you will notice a short or stiff arm swing and short leg stride. What are their actions when walking by person/persons, and streets/doorways, etc?

Vehicle Stops - Look for a rising shoulder, or moving up to grab the weapon from the waistband, Bending over or shoulder dip to hide the weapon under a seat.

Clothing & Actions - what features stand out, attract your attention, and arouse your suspicion. Clothing: Does the clothing fit the season?, Does the clothing match?, Is the clothing loose, or baggy?, In cold weather, is the individuals coat unzipped or unbuttoned?, Look for the individual wearing only one glove, When concealed in a jacket pocket, hood, or bag, gravity pulls that weight down - Firearms have WEIGHT, Look for uneven dip in clothing or bags, Tailored in/worn out, etc.- build of subject, Does shoes/boots match clothing (conditions), Does work outfits match conditions, Pants, belts (no belt loops, but is wearing belt), Ponchos (wide arms, etc), Chains, straps, hats, etc., Socks (use elastic as ankle holster), Pockets, Hoods and drawstrings, Color combinations, Gloves (one hand gloved, the other in their pocket), Outer garments (Are jacket, pants, shoes coordinated for dress/work/leisure?)BULGES and certain body movements observed to discover the smallest/best concealed unholstered weapons.

Different ways guns are carried, and where they are possessed - Waistband (Front side, crook of back, etc.), Pants (Pockets, cuffs, etc.), Pockets (Pants, jackets, coats, etc.), Hats (Including hoods of sweatshirts, jackets, etc.), Underwear (Protective cups, etc.), Shoes and boots, Bags (Hand, backpacks, pouches, shoulder), Radios, cameras, video recorders (all sizes), Grocery bags, boxes, shopping bags, etc., Hollow books, newspapers, cigarette packs & boxes, Holsters (Bought, made, stolen-All types), Bikes & Motorcycles, Vehicles.

Confrontation tactics and apprehension - Picking location - time, circumstances permit; where, why, Single, multiple person stops, Approach techniques, Cover, Prior knowledge of person you are approaching, Firearm usage/ restraint/shooting tactics, Pursuit of armed felons (auto/foot), Searches, Surveillance of person/persons, Vehicle stops and searches, Conversation techniques with the person/persons during approach, search, questioning, and possibly processing, Resistance by person/persons

THINK about when you wear your gun off duty, and your actions (they are very similar).

V-Line Top Draw

This is a 10-pound safe with more than 1,000 possible manual combinations. It uses no batteries and can be paired with a quick-release mounting bracket that can be attached to the floor or a fixed object. A heavy-duty cable lock is also standard. The Top Draw is a somewhat archaic looking safe, but it is very well made and very functional. It was as secure as any of the electronic-lock safes based on our safe-cracking experiments. Time to open: 2 seconds. MSRP: $188

V-Line Desk Mate

This unique design is purpose built for mounting under a desk or counter. It comes with a quick-release mounting bracket and utilizes a mechanical lock with more than 1,000 combination possibilities. It is a bit thin for my hands, but there is a pullout tray to make handgun access easier. The door flops down when the combination is entered and is recessed to prevent prying. When properly mounted, this may be one of the most difficult safes to crack. Time to open: 4 seconds. MSRP: $199
